When Competition Has Killed Profit FOR RENT-Modern housekeeping

By MR. MUNNIMAKER

The Famous Profit-Wizard of the Standard Classified Advertising Columns.

"I was talking the other day with a business man in this city who had a particularly interesting experience, and one which I believe the readers of the Standard ought to know about," said Mr. Munnimaker, the famous Profit Wizard of the Standard, yesterday, as he returned to the office, to arrange some details in connection with the Market Place of the Munnimakers. Mr. Munnimaker, as everybody knows, is the presiding genius of the classified columns of the Standard.

"This business man was not an advertiser. He was complaining to me that he had so many competitors in business that his profits were cut almost to nothing. Of course I asked him if he meant that the competitors were cutting prices so much that he could not get a good profit. 'No.' my friend, 'it isn't so much a matter of cutting prices—I could stand that—ness—that, when they have any orbut the fact is, there are so many of them after each order that in order to get any orders at all I have to spend an enormous amount of time and troughed have a mount of the same representation.
